How do you store a bottle in a pantry?

The shoe organizer storage is a great idea IF you have a door on your pantry that is not a bi-fold and IF there is enough clearance with the shelves. Amazon also sells some storage holders that are clear plastic with slots to stack one bottle on top of the other.

How do you store gizmos on a cabinet door?

Cut the plywood three or four inches shy of the door edges to avoid conflicts with the doorknob or hinges. Now you can mount as many hooks, magnets and other storage gizmos as you like. To store cutting boards, mount a rack on a cabinet door. Use a sheet of 1/4-in.-thick acrylic plastic; plywood would also work.

How do you organize water bottles in a pantry?

Simple Water Bottle Organization Hack: Use An Over The Door Shoe Organizer! So the most popular idea provided by readers, and that seems to really work long term, is to put up an over the door shoe organizer on the back of your pantry door and use that to hold the bottles.

How do you store a lid in a plastic bin?

This awesome lid storage hack is such fun and so innovative. Head off to your dollar store and find a cooling rack and a plastic bin. This project is super simple to assemble - just fit the cooling rack into (or on top of) the bin, and then slot your lids into place. You have a homemade hack for storing those annoying lids.

How do you store mugs & bottles?

When you put a bottle/mug away, you pull down the basket and put the bottle and lid into the basket. When you need one, same thing - pull down the basket and find what you need. The baskets fit great on my shelf and no more pushing the bottles around on the shelf, only to have them all fall over. another vote for keeping them in the fridge!
